HENDERSON, NEVADA

AREA OVERVIEW

Henderson, officially 'the City of Henderson', is a city in Clark County, Nevada. It is the second largest city in Nevada, after Las Vegas, with a population of 257,729 at the 2010 census. Henderson's population is currently estimated to be 291,432, which represents a 13% growth in just 6 years. The city is part of the Las Vegas metropolitan area, which spans the entire Las Vegas Valley. Henderson is located just 7 miles from the famed Las Vegas Strip and a couple of miles from beautiful Lake Mead and the Hoover Dam. Known throughout the nation for its premier master-planned communities, outstanding parks and recreation facilities and cultural arts, Henderson offers an enhanced quality of life for its residents.

ECONOMY Not only is Nevada's second largest city "a place to call home" – as the city's slogan states – it has also become a premier place in the Southwest to do business. In the 1980s and the early 1990s, Henderson became a national leader when it came to the success of master-planned communities. While the population boom has continued, the past decade has established Henderson as "The Las Vegas Valley Address for Business Success." In the past two decades, city leaders, working in close partnership with the community, have been aggressively diversifying the city's economy by attracting new, modern industries and businesses. As the Las Vegas region continues to attract additional new residents each month and many new businesses each year, these residents and businesses generate a demand for products and services making Henderson an ideal place for business opportunities. With thousands of people moving into the Las Vegas valley over the past decade, Southern Nevada's economy continues to grow and diversify. It is estimated that nearly 15% of new residents come to the area already possessing professional, management or technical skills. A population of over one million people lives within a 25-minute commute of Henderson-area business parks allowing the opportunity for Henderson-based business to attract employees for all positions and skill levels.

The largest age groups for Henderson are 25-54 year-olds, representing 41.7% of the city's population (2008-2012 US Census Bureau ACS). This indicates Henderson is attracting a high percentage of workforce-age population.

While the local economy has strong roots in leisure and hospitality industries, sectors such as education and health services, finance, manufacturing and professional business services have accounted for thousands of new jobs in recent years.

AREA OVERVIEW

EDUCATION The Clark County School District provides elementary and secondary public education. Henderson is home to 29 elementary schools, nine middle schools, and nine high schools. Five of the nine high schools are public schools. A tenth high school, Silverado High School, also serves parts of Henderson but is located outside of the city proper, in unincorporated Clark County.

Henderson is home to several colleges and universities: Nevada State College, a baccalaureate college in the Nevada System of Higher Education; The Roseman University of Health Sciences, a private university which awards degrees in nursing, pharmacy, and business; and The College of Southern Nevada, a community college based in Las Vegas, which maintains a branch campus in Henderson. California's National University and Touro University Nevada also maintain a campus in Henderson.

Several for-profit colleges also operate in the city, including Sanford-Brown College, Everest College-Henderson formerly Las Vegas College, and the Nevada branch of the ITT Technical Institute.

CULTURE For a city in the desert, Henderson takes parks very seriously: the town is connected by 65 miles of trails, and its award-winning parks and recreation department is working toward a goal of having a neighborhood park within a half mile of all city residents. Henderson's budget dipped in the downturn, but no services were cut thanks to a rainy-day fund and sustainability efforts that save $2 million a year. With affordable homes and no state income tax, the town is popular with young families and retirees alike.

An increasing number of major shopping malls, movie theater complexes, restaurants and casino resorts offer residents a variety of choices for leisure time in Henderson. The city also boasts the largest recreational facility - the Multigenerational Facility at Liberty Pointe - in Nevada as well as Nevada's only scenic Bird Preserve. The city supports a variety of other cultural events as well, many of which are held at the outdoor amphitheater, the Henderson Pavilion, the largest one of its kind in Nevada. In 2014, Henderson was again ranked as one of the Top 10 "Safest Cities in the United States" by the FBI Uniform Crime Report.
