MARKET OVERVIEW

SHOW LOW

Show Low was named after a marathon poker game played between two early settlers. They decided there wasn't enough room for both of them in the community and agreed to let a game of cards decide who was to get the $\pm 100,000$ -acre ranch and who was to move on. According to the story, one of them said, "If you can show low, you win." The other one turned up the deuce of clubs and replied, "show low it is." Show Low got its name from that card game and Show Low's main street is named "Deuce of Clubs" in remembrance.

MARKET OVERVIEW

METROPOLITAN PHOENIX

Phoenix is the capital of Arizona as well as the state's financial center. Its strategic location provides easy access to major markets and the entire western U.S. Seventy-five percent of Arizona's economy is represented by metropolitan Phoenix. With opportunities for high-wage employment and a favorable climate, Arizona remains a national leader in population growth. The Phoenix metro area maintains a reputation for business-friendly policies. An entrepreneurial spirit backed by numerous public-private partnerships have established the Valley as a preferred location for tech-centric companies and other start-ups.

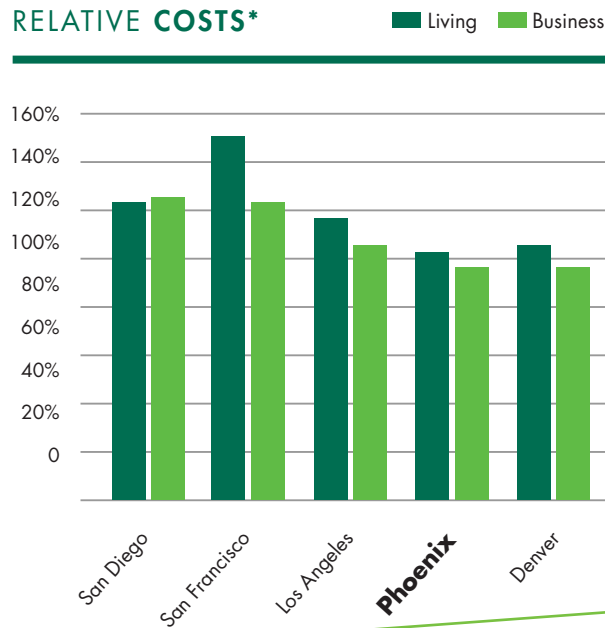

The Phoenix area benefits from robust digital and telecommunications infrastructure. Extensive highway infrastructure connects metropolitan Phoenix communities and ties them to the interstate system for easy access into and out of the area. Employment growth rates for the Valley continue to improve and are projected to grow at a pace twice that of national rates. Further bolstering prospects for a bright economic future, the cost of living and cost of doing business are low. This provides a compelling value proposition for people and businesses alike.

BUSINESS

Metropolitan Phoenix is an attractive and cost-effective place to do business. Arizona is a right-to-work state and mean wages, workers compensation and unemployment insurance are relatively low. These lower operating costs are drawing more corporate headquarters and manufacturers to the state. Companies choosing to locate in metropolitan Phoenix recognize that in addition to lower costs, there is an ideal match between the existing labor pool and their employment needs. Employers in Phoenix's growing industries, including technology, healthcare, education, finance, professional business services and manufacturing, among others, recognize the abundance of talent in the area, and the strong commitment community leaders have made to ensure private enterprise thrives in Phoenix.

Currently, the healthcare industry is seeing impressive job gains in Arizona, with one in every five jobs added to the state economy over the past year falling within the field. The Valley's healthcare industry is a $20.5 billion industry and supports 229,200 jobs with a median income of $50,526. Industries like technology, leisure and hospitality, trade, transportation and utilities are also areas showing noticeable promise.

MARKET OVERVIEW

DEMOGRAPHICS & ECONOMY

Metropolitan Phoenix has experienced significant population growth over the last several decades, growing from 375,000 residents in 1950 to more than 4.6 million people in 2015. In 2014, Maricopa County had the second-largest population increase in the nation (74,000 people). For the past 21 years, population growth in the Valley has exceeded the national average. Metropolitan Phoenix is one of only 10 U.S. markets expected to see most of the nation's growth over the next 40 years. In addition to being one of the fastest-growing metro areas, greater Phoenix also has one of the youngest populations in the nation with a median age of 34.7 years. This is almost three years younger than the national average. This young workforce offers long term stability for Phoenix employers.

METROPOLITAN PHOENIX AGE DISTRIBUTION

Source: Nielsen

Metropolitan Phoenix is home to two thirds of the state's residents and accounts for the majority of higher paying jobs. The employment outlook in metropolitan Phoenix is bright with the Valley recording the lowest unemployment rate in Arizona at 5.4%* for June 2015. Looking ahead, employment is forecasted to grow at an average annual rate of 3.3% by 2019; nearly triple the national rate of 1.3%. The strong hiring environment and labor force expansion will have positive effects on the housing market resulting in an increase in household formation and median household income growth. In 2014, the per capita personal income for metropolitan Phoenix was $40,395, and this is projected to be $48,329 by 2019.

INFRASTRUCTURE

As the Valley experiences increasing population and job growth, electrical and internet infrastructure become more and more critical. Fortunately, infrastructure in metropolitan Phoenix has more than kept up. APS and SRP, the area's electricity providers, are ranked as top business service providers for reliability.

The digital data industry also recognizes metropolitan Phoenix's robust internet and data infrastructure. Digital data sent via the internet in Arizona is well protected due to fewer environmental threats. The state ranks in the top 10 for low catastrophic and natural disaster risk. This is a critical issue for data center operators that require redundant backup and ensured availability of data, which means metropolitan Phoenix is advantageously positioned to accommodate the digital age.

Metropolitan Phoenix has two major airports, Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport and Phoenix-Mesa Gateway Airport. Both of these airports provide convenient and affordable flights to cities across the U.S. and beyond. Phoenix Sky Harbor handles 40 million passengers a year and serves over 100,000 passengers per day with more than 1,200 daily flights. The daily economic impact of the airport surpasses $79 million-a-day on a typical day for the metropolitan area. Phoenix Sky Harbor was the country's ninth-busiest airport in 2014.

Phoenix-Mesa Gateway Airport is a decommissioned air force base that was developed as a back up to Sky Harbor in 2008. In 2013, the airport's economic impact was $1.3 billion.
