The Evolution of RiverNorth

During the past decade, the RiverNorth neighborhoods have experienced explosive growth.

The North Loop's catalytic transformation of old warehouses along Washington Avenue into housing kick started the interest in living downtown. Today, the neighborhood is home to over 3,000 residential units, Whole Foods, tap rooms, nationally recognized restaurants, fashionable boutiques, and more than 600,000 square feet of new office space.

Northeast Minneapolis is an embodiment of old meets new. New businesses open next to historic shops while neighborhoods offer old and new residents a place to call home. Northeast boasts the historic Grain Belt Brewery complex, award-winning restaurants like Young Joni, vintage dive bars, river-view patios, and the amazing Northeast Arts District that showcases the talents of over 400 local artists.

Northside/Near North is one of Minneapolis' most diverse neighborhoods. Prince spent some formative years in this area. Local businesses like Juxtaposition Arts, the Capri Theater and Sammy's Avenue Eatery are bringing new life and energy to the area with a focus on community-led growth and innovation.

All three neighborhoods have coalesced into a new urban gateway; RiverNorth. A community where desirability and connectivity have united. Lundstrum Performing Arts, Pries Brewing, and Coloplast's North American Headquarters all blend seamlessly with existing businesses like Vogel Paints and Garelick Steel. Target Field and the adjacent Target Station multi-modal transit hub nearby; make RiverNorth the ideal place to live, work and play.
